Washington, June 10.—A good deal of interest is felt here to-day in the action of the House in the adoption of a resolution for adjournment June 30. The general impression is that if the Democrats attend strictly to business and don't make any attacks on the Republican candidates for the sake of making campaign literature the Senate will confer. If, however, it attacks the Republican candidates, the Republican can

When the Mississipple liver section is reached Mr. Clardy will offer an amendment to increase the sum given that river between Calro and St. Louis to $80,000, which was the sum granted in the last bill.

MRS. FRANCE P. HAIT'S PERSION.

The Senate Pension Committee to-day reported back the House bill granting the widow of General Francis P. Hait's $60,000 and a pension of $50 per month. The report simply quotes the House Committee report and adds: "We report the bill back without recommendation." This non-committal report, while not considered adverse, its rather unfavorable than other wise, although the indications are that the bill may pass the Senate before the end of the session.

The second annual co-operative sale at the Real Estate Exchange opened this afternoon shortly after 1 o'clock. These sales have now become a Estate Exchange opened this afternoon shortly after I o'clock. These sales have now become a permanent part of the real estate business in St. Louis, and their brief existence has already given the Exchange a prominence in the transfers of city property which has resulted beneficially to the purchaser and agent and which it never enjoyed before. They have materially reduced the expenses of disposing of valuable lots by auction, and a dealer can now get the benefit of the eniagred advertising and the attractions offered by other sellers, for a much smaller amount than he used to expend for an individual sale that was necessarily restricted in its influence upon the public.

The floor of the Exchange was seated with chairs, but at the four of sale they were all taken and the room was well filled. The attendance was a surprise to even the most sanguine managers and comprise to even the property for bidding put a private figure upon it and the auctioneer was instructed to pass that plece if the piece was not reached.

Loxidon. June 10.—The Pall Mall Gazetto reiterates its belief in the account it published yesterday of the leading provisions of the agreement upon which the Egyptian conference will be based, recently made by Granville and Waddington, and says it is substantially accurate. It says: "When further concealment had been fatal to the existence of the ministry, we felt compelled to publish the scheme at which the whole nation now stands aghast. The lame, labored denial of the News amounts to a virtual admission of the truth of our revelation. However inaccurate it may be in detail; every member of the Cabinet knows it. At least in regard to the proposed English loan of $8,000,000 to the Khedive we were absolutely correct. All the jugglery and self-deception of the Government's protest will not affect the simple fact that England is to be in a permanent minority on the Board of Audit.

Our French colleagues make no secret of their determination to convert the Board of Audit into their effectual control. The Ministers know this is tries.

thing to lose.

Persons well informed in what is going on in Parliamentary circles predict a change of Government within three weeks. If this statement of the Pall Mall Gazette proves true the Government, will have no chance if it attempts to carry out such an agreement with France. Is will then resign and the Conservatives will continue the Government until the August general elections. Their hands were like little bird claws, save that the claws were extraordinarily long ones. Thinking it odd to see a melancholy woman whiling away her time with that sort of playtnings, a reporter stepped up to talk to her about it. As he did so, one of the dolls opened its mouth and gaped as gap that would have done credit to an earthquake, while the other twisted up its face and uttered a very little squeak. "The general current of my thought was unquestionably tending in that direction," said the volunteer humorist. "Let us look at the matter in another light, however. The are some people to whom the fall in stocks was a blessing. They are not sad, but, on the contrary, they are."
"You bet they do," said the horse reporter, "They just grin and bear it. That excruciatingly funny thing that was brought in last week by a man from Wayback."
"But even the wisset men are sometimes wrong," continued the visitor. "Even the."
"I knew you were coming to that. Even the sage is liable to be 'put' out at the 'calls' made on him. I remember the duck that carried that masterpiece of humor up here for us. We are looking again for him—with a gun."
"But leaving individuals out of the matter," said the dispenser of humor, "let us take some of the firms. You might say."
"I know it. We might say that in Fisk-al matters it is easy to Hatch a plot—but we won't. It would also be possible to remark that bankers are sometimes found to be men of no principle, especially when it is to their interest to do so, but a vacation on that style of literature will also be taken."

"Then you don't think it would be possible to make use of the article I have prepared?" said the humorist.

"No," replied the horse reporter. "Those old custom-made jokes that bag at the knees before you can get 'em in type won't do for Chicago. If you have got a job lot of handsewed witticisms, with double uppers and wide soles something that will do for city use—we might make a trade."

"Good day," said the humorist.

"Au revoir," responded the horse reporter. "If you see a big three-story-and-basement word out in the hall, don't be alarmed. It's only waiting for the dramatic critic to come along and hurl it at the public."

Commercial Notes.

Foreign crop prospects are understood to be promising, providing there are no assistents before harvest. In Canadas the acreage of winter wheat is about 20 per cent. less than last year, The condition is reported to be much more satisfactory than on May 1. Rye, in the eastern provinces, was partially winter killed. In France the condition of the crop is reported to be uniformly favorable. The farmers' deliveries of oid wheat have been light, indicating that the official estimates were probably too high and that the crop last year did not amount to over $0,000,000 hectolitree. Reports from New Zealand are that there will be an export surplus, together with the surplus of Vetoria and South Australia, is estimated at 25,000,000 bushels. Some reports of rust in the wheat crops have been received from Austro-Bungary. In Rommania and Moidavia the weather has been hot and rain is needed. A leading Liverpool weak y circular says: "As Rommania and Noidavia the weather has been hot and rain is needed. MATINEES TO-DAY Union Pank-St. Louis Unions vs. Cincinnati, at 4 p. m

THE list of Republican papers that will not work for the party this year is unusually gratifying.

THE Massachusetts. Republicans being asked if they will eat crow, say that they do not like crow, but will try to eat it.

Is the Democratic ticket should happen to be CLEVELAND and MORRISON it would make Illinois one of the doubtful States.

ers is that maybe cold crow will not be as nasty as it is when it is fresh and hot. They are ask ing old GARFIELD men how this is,

Don't count too confidently on the malcor tents. BLAINE will be around among them soon. He is a great hand to take such fellows up into a high mountain and call their attention to lovely landscapes.

THE weather has been unusally cold, but we have not noticed any disposition on the part of the local political gang to "get left," It will be colder weather than it is now before there is any cessation of their baneful activity.

vote for BLAINE it might be judicious to find out whether BLAINE is a prohibitionist or not. The German Republicans have very strong sentiments on the question of personal liberty.

THE indications are that the present cold weather will continue for three or four days If we could only count on something of this kind for the summer we might put back our grates, take out our ulsters and prepare to enjoy

THE BLAINE and LOGAN ratification this evening will be a great event. It is excted that John B. Henderson will get up and tell us that BLAINE was his choice from the start, and that he will incidentally explain the story about his selling out FILLEY.

Now that the Commissioners of Labor of several States have met in convention in St. Louis, we should like to ask them whether it is necessary that a Commissioner should have any previous acquaintance with the public interest intrusted to his charge. We do not desire to

Mr. THEODORE ROOSEVELT, the Herculean the passage of seven reform bills in a single Reformer, but says that he is "also a Republican." This we take to mean that Mr. Roose-VELT is opposed to abuses, but is in favor of perpetuating them.

THE Republican states officially this morning that it "would like to see Mr. JOHN G. PRIEST elected as delegate-at-large to the Chicago Convention, and Mr. JOHN G. PRATPER returned to the National Committee." We are sorry to hear this, but still it is possible that both of these gentlemen may be recognized. The support of the Republican is not always fatal.

THE movement to secure cheap railroad which speaks well, not only for the energy and vim of the citizens who put it through, but for the good will and good sense of the railroad officials who co-operated so readily and heartily in it. A little more of the same spirit could be profitably shown in many directions in St.

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS, JR., and the Boston Reform Club call on the Democracy to save them from BLAINE by nominating CLEVELAND and Carlisle. Pennsylvania and Kentucky gave the Democrats an alliterated ticket, Buchnow furnish another ticket in alphabetical order that would sweep the field. It would give to the country a vigorous and aggressively hon-est but safe administration, and to the Senate Legislature of his State, the Readjus the best presiding officer it has ever had since ernor of Virginia, for instance, could enable JEFFERSON was Vice-President.

It appears that the question whether a street railroad company can charge two fares for a of violence and intimidation at the polls. Still, single ride has not yet been settled in this city. as the Senate may, as in 1876, insist on its right and that Mr. Maxon is of the opinion that his to do that under the present laws, and as this and that Mr. Maxon is of the opinion that his jurisdiction in the matter is final. Some of the bill will enable the States to settle their own residents in the territory of John Maxon are of the opinion that they are entitled to a ride hardly, in any event, make us any worse off to the end of the line for a single fare, but Mr. than we are, and it ought to pass for the good it Maxon has devised a plan to prevent this. Should any unruly and obstreperous passenger from Fourth street attempt to use an extension our, the dodge is to stop the car and keep the whole body of passengers waiting. This is his plan, but it does not work.

In a least as fair for the party that controls the House as for the party that controls the Senate.

NOT TWO DROMIOS.

Many journals and orators are dwelling points of recemblance between BLAINE and HENRY CLAY in character and career. But the points in which the resemblance fails are more remarkable than those in which it holds.

The only charge of corruption to which CLAY's ambition ever exposed him was an al-leged dicker by which he received a cabinet apatment for electing ADAMS, and the flimsy ground on which that charge was made converted it into a positive testimonial to his high character. The most prejudiced of his partisan opponents never suspected him of being accessible to any money influence what-ever. During his long public service he never got above a Washington boarding-house or hotel for himself, while his family remained in their modest country home. All the money he ever obtained came from the treasury in the form of a stated alary or from his Lexington law practice poor man, after friends, whose names were kept secret from him and from the world, had once saved his Ashland farm by paying off a debt of $30,000.

But in less than eight years after BLAINE ntered Congress a poor man he was reputed very rich, and was maintaining there the estabent of a millionaire. His possessions are w said to be worth several millions, and the equisition thereof is shrouded with dark ouds of doubt and suspicion, through wniel flit the shadows of JAY COOKE, JAY GOULD, C. P. HUNTINGTON and other beneficiaries of the great jobs by which, with BLAINE's assistance, the public treasury and the public domain have been looted.

. The wealth which BRADY and DORSEY sud enly acquired was for a time credited to successful speculations in telephone and nining stocks, but we now know better. The fact that men like WEBSTER, CLAY, CALHOUN, BENTON, and other ante-bellum statesmen, were never able to make even their expenses in the public service inclines the ommon people to look with some shade of doubt and distrust upon great fortunes quickly acquired by the incumbents of high public trusts in Washington, and there is a marked difference in this respect between BLAINE and CLAY, as well as between BLAINE and LIN-COLN, OF BLAINE and GARFIELD.

THE ELECTORAL VOTE BILL.

The House is talking about adjourning the nonth, but should not do so without first assisting in the enactment of some law providing a safer method of settling disputes about electoral votes. The Republican party goes into this Presidential contest under a bold, aggressive and sensational leadership. The temporary chairman of its convention declared that no an whose title was brought forth in fraud rould be permitted to assume the office of Pres ident, and that a Democratic caudidate could not acquire a title in any other way. The applause which greeted this speech portends another dispute between two houses of opposite politics over contested electoral votes another another surrender of the Presidency to fraud or its seizure by force, unless provision is now made by law for something better than an 8 to 7 commission to prevent conflicting awards by the two houses of Congress.

The Electoral Count bill, which the Senate has passed and sent to the House, may not be perfect, but it is probably the best bill that can pass the present Senate. It was not objected to by the Democrats of that body, and it cermake any invidious allusions; we merely ask tainly does fill with tolerably fair and safe provisions a very dangerous hiatus in the present law on the subject. It provides that, where a State shall have constituted a tribunal with Young Reformer of New York, he who secured jurisdiction over disputes in regard to its electoral votes, the decision of that tribunal session of the Assembly, admits that he is a shall be conclusive on both houses, and the votes of said State shall be counted accordingly. Where a State has failed to provide any such tribunal, its contested votes are not to be counted at all, except with the concurrent assent of both houses of Congress, each voting separately on the question. This recognizes the entire sovereignty of each State with re spect to the appointment of its Presidential electors, enables it to withdraw all disputes on the subject from Congress, and to have its electoral votes counted according to the decision to provide such a tribunal, the State will be liable to be deprived of one or more of its electoral votes by a partisan majority in either house of Congress. But no vote can be counted wrongfully unless both houses agree to it, and by appointing her own tribunal the State can have her electoral votes counted regardless of the views or wishes of both houses, or of either of them.

us, is that a universal failure on the part of the States to provide the contemplated tribunals in time would render the new law inoperative with respect to the pending election, except that provision of it which authorizes either house to prevent the counting of any or all contested votes. The Governors of the States in which contests are likely to arise can easily obviate this objection by calling extra sessions of their Legis But by refusing to convene the Den the Republican Sentate under this bill to throw out all the Democratic electoral votes of that opens its session in Madison to-day me less noise and excitement than last week's political convention called out in Chicago, and yet the real importance of its work is hardly less

Of all interests, outside of the direct que tion of our national government none touches more closely the vital welfare of the nation than the interest of education. It is universal, all permeating, its consequences extend through every relation of life, and affect the whole career of the citizen and the voter. Our army of eleven millions of voters of to-day is outnumbered twice by that coming army of boys and girls whom it is our duty to educate the destinies of the nation as affected by the chool education of the coming generation are in our hands now.

What are we doing for that great cause! Al most nothing. From the national standpoint we care less for the cause of education than for the cause of ship-building in Maine or sheep-husbandry in Ohio.

Locally we spend more or less money for education. After a hundred years of free popular government, it has come to pass that some of the great cities we spend nearly as nuch money for the education of our children as we spend for whisky. In the country of course, the cause of learning is not so well reated. Even in the great cities, however, we fail to fulfill our whole duty to our children in the matter of schools.

To cite a proof of our backwardness in educational matters it is sufficient to point to the discreceful fact that while we maintain a sysem of public schools and endowed and chartered colleges side by side we establish no con nection between them and we do not even seem to know that there is any possible, necessary or natural connection between them.

A more comprehensive illustration of th eneral neglect of education is that we are only just now beginning to recognize that there is higher department of education than the drudgery of the school room. We make inadequate provision for the school teachers, but we make no provision at all for the educators whose mission it is to develop and illustrate the science of educating.

Such a convention as the one we allude goes far to remedy this defect. A great step is taken when practical educators meet by the thousand to organize and, out of the resource of empirical experience, to develop a science of convention will not hold the world in suspense while it is casting its vote for a candida its proceedings may be very dull and dry, but, uniess we are very much mistaken, its conse quences will endure among us as living real ities long after the frothy contentions of the political campaign are utterly forgotten.

THERE is much complaint of Mr. TILDEN'S disposition to make the most of his leap year privileges and to keep the ardent suitor in suspense to the last possible moment. Those who clamor for a prompt answer from him do not put themselves in his place and feel how sweet it is to be wooed by the unanimous voice of a party of five millions of voters. Even if he has made up his mind not to accept the nominaroad to success without him, it is very natural that Mr. TILDEN should retain to the last the power to head off the nomination of a weak ticket by accepting the nomination himself. Mr. TILDEN will probably make up his mind and give his answer when he has a reasonable asurance that his declination will not expose the party to a blundering nomination.

GEN. ABE BUFORD, whose sad death by suicide is announced, was in his younger days a big, brave, jolly and generous man. Once during the war he addressed his hungry and thirsty cavalry from the hurricane deck of a steamboat which they had brought to in the middle of a Tennessee stream. "Boys," said he, "I find nothing on board that we want except the contents of this demijohn, and as there is but little left of that I proceed to drink it for you." There was silence on shore while he went through the motions of taking a long, refreshing drink, but when he turned it up to take another after rubbing his portly stomach with aggravating signs of satisfaction, the boys on shore sent a volley over his head, and the General suddenly concluded not to prolong the ex-

But the recent performances with Missouri Pacific have most astonished the street, and that stock will probably be let severely alone in the future. A stock which goes down on a dead run from about 82 to 64, then shoots up to 87 again, is something the average trader gives a wide berth to. That sort of average trader gives a wide bertii to. That sort of thing wipes out margins either way too suddenly for comfort. It is well understood that Mr. Gould controls about all the Missouri Pacific on the market, and can put the quotation about where he pleases, but after the shorts in it have been made to step up to the captain's office and settle, the stock may be used to paper walls with for all the street is likely to meddle with it. The absurdly fictitious character of the present price may be inferred from likely to meddle with it. The absurdly fictitious character of the present price may be inferred from the fact that yesterday, when it was quoted at 86, somebody tried to sell 800 shares seller 80, and the best bid he could get was 65. After all, the Democrats will have to nominate their own candidates, and if they should turn out to be men for whom the disastisfied Republicans, the Greenbackers, the anti-monopolists and the labor men could unitedly cast their suffrages, why their chances of beating Blaine and Logan would be very good indeed."

By Felegraph to the Post-Disputch.

New Yoax, June 10.—Mr. George William Curtis returned from his defeat in Chicago yesterday moraing. He went straight to his office in Pearl street, pulled off his coat and began the preparation of an editorial which shall indicate the attitude of Harper's Weekly in the coming Presidential campaign. When a reporter called upon him he refused to be seen, pleading as an excuse the accumulation of business during his absence. The following note was sent to him: "Will Harper's Weekly support Mr. Blaine in the coming campaign, or will it do all in its power to compass defeat?" The reply came back that the Weekly itself would answer that question. While returning from the or will it do all in its power to compass defeat?"

The reply came back that the Weekly itself would answer that question. While returning from the Convention Mr. Curtis, in conversation with a friend, said: "I am unwilling to say anything whatever about the ticket. I expressed myself to the convention as to the character of the men who ought to be the leaders of the Republican party, in the coming battle. Neither Blaine nor Logan reaches that standard."

"What will be your future course?"

"I am not prepared to say. I said before the convention, in speaking upon the motion to bind delegates to the support of any man who might be nominated, that I went in the convention as a free, untrammeled Republican, and by the help of God I intended to come out of it as I went in. My sentiments are still unchanged. I feel it my duty to do honorably what in my judgment is for the best interests of the country, without reference as to what the action of the convention has been. I favored Senator Edmunds and yoted for him to the last. I could say no more for Arthur than I could for Blaine. There has been no conference of the Independents that I know of since the Convention adjourned. It would be exceedingly unwise so soon after the nominations have been made to take any decided action.

and November to determine what the independents will do.

A reporter visited the publishing house of Harper & Brothers in order to obtain, if possible, an authorized amnouncement on the subject. In reply to his loquiry, a representative of the house made a statement, by authority, that Harper's Weekly will oppose the Chicago nominations; that the decission to his effect was reached by the members of the House unanimously and that the pen of George William Curtis and the pencil of Mr. Thos. Nast will be exerted in support of this course. John Austin Stevens was asked if he would not vote for Biaine. He replied that in no case should he vote for Mr. Blaine, still he was disinclined to, and could not vote for a candidate of the Democratic party. Mr. Stevens and decitath he thought the mission of the Republican party was finished, and that there would be no difficulty in organishing a party without a nomine that will take in the best men on economic prince Republican party was finished, and that the bene difficulty inorganising a party without mee that will take in the best men on econd ciples, which includes both the Democratic publican parties' best men. any question of personal nominees will enter the campaign.

Newspaper opposition to Blaine grows stronger daily. Last evening the Post, which bitterly opposes him, printed a list of the independent and Republican papers which are openly committed against him. It now stands: New York Times, New York Herald, Harper's Weekly, Puck, Evening Telegram, Brooklyn Union, Rochester Post Express, Rockester Herald, Syracuse Herald, Syracuse Herald, Syracuse Herald, Syracuse Georgian Advertiser, Boston Transcript, Boston Herald, Springfield Republican, Philadelphia Pimes, Chicago News, and New Haven News.

In addition, several influential papers like the Buffalo Commercial-Advertiser and the Boston Journal are very cool in their support. The Commercial-Advertiser of this city has not defined a position, but evidently has no intention, of acvocating Blaine.

At 3 o'clock Referee Hazard told Bert Brown, Couriney's trainer, to find his man and tell him to prepare for the race that would be started at 5 o'clock. Brown went off and in an hour returned with the answer that he could not find his man anywhere. Courtney had been over the course in the morning, and afterward said that the water was good.

At 5 o'clock the water was quite smooth over half the distance, though in places there were trifling choppy ripples, caused by eddies. At New York the Metropolitans beat the Louisvilles by a score of 7 to 5, eleven innings being required to finish it. The Athletics turned the tables on the Columbus at Philadelphia, beating them by a score of 8 to 0. In the Union Association fight the Chicago Unions were entertained at Kansas City, opening the season of the new club there and beating them by a score of 12 to 3. At Boston the Baltimore Unions beat the Boston Unions by a score of 10 to 4. At Philadelel of 12 to 3. At Boston the Baltimore Unions beat the Boston Unions by a score of 10 to 4. At Philadelphia the Keystones trimmed up the Nationals by a score of 6 to 4. There was no game in St. Louis, rain stopping proceedings in the third inning.

In the League fight the following skirmishes were recorded: At Detroit the Buffalos beat the betroits by a score of 5 to 3. The Bostons and Providence had another great game at Providence, and the Hubbites won by a score of 2 to 0. The batting was light, the fielding magnificent, and the pitching of of Sweeny and Buffington was superb. At Philadelphia the New Yorks beat the Philadelphias by a score of 19 to 8.

Jake Gaudaur was in town yesterday and is in fine condition, being as strong as a locomotive and as lean and spare as a stag hound. His most important engagement is at the regatta on the St. Charles River, Mass. July 4, at which he will meet some of the most prominent carsmen in America. His next engagement is at the Calais, Me., regatta, July 24.

A. A. Dennie, the well-known lacrosse enthusiast, is in town, and speaks warmly of the prospects of the game, which he says is bound to take the precedence in time over all other field pastimes. A league is to be formed shortly embracing all the principal cities, and in this, St. Louis, is to be littingly represented.

A London correspondent writes.

A London correspondent writes: "The schedule for the Crystal Falace is out. It contains one improvement, that is, rescinding the rule that if four dogs compete in a class only one prize would be awarded; all will be given now. This is liberal and right; now we wonder whether they will abolish another objectionable feature of their shows which was far more reprehensively grasping, that of charging readmission, half a crown at a time, on judging days."

On June 17, 18, 19 the by relists tournament at Jumbo Park, Philadelphia, will be held. $5,000 in prizes are to be distributed. The grand stand, exhibition buildings, judges, and reporters' stands, offices, etc., are finished, and the track has been accurately surveyed. The course is laid but on the most scientific principles, and is pronounced by all who have seen it to be one of the finest in the country. Prince, Carey, Frazier and Morgan are among the bicyclists already arrived in the city. Woodside is expected on Monday.

An Enquirer dispatch from Oakland, Md., under date June 8, says: "A peculiar accident, resulting in the death of one young man and the fatally injuring of another, cocurred near Red House, nine miles southeast of this city, this afternoon. Reports reaching here say Wm. Brimble and Stephen Grimes, both about 25 years of are, indulged in a friendly race with horses they were riding. Brimble's horse became unmanageable, ran out of the road and against a tree, killing Brimble instantly. Grimes horse, after running 100 yards further, made a similar break, so badly injuring his rider that it is thought he will die."

Mr. Dore Stulb of Philadelphia has met with an almost firesparable loss by the death of the casisbrated imported setter dog Temple Bar. He was one of the purset bred Liewellyn setters in America, and as field dog he had no superior, having taken several dies premiume at national exhibitions. He was incored by Mr. Alfred G. cover at a cost of $500, and Slosson or any man in the world in a game of boo points, eight or ten inch balk-line, on a table similar to the one used in the game of May 12, 1,000 points a night for five successive nights, the winner to take everything and pay everything; the match to be played in Chicago on any day in October next that the accepting party may decide on. Believing myself to be the best player at balk-line, I am willing to give odds. This challenge is made to Mr. Slosson in particular, but next to him Mr. Vignaux, of Paris, is preferred." The Centrais defeated the Wedge House Sunday, by a score of 6 to 4. The feature of the game was the fine pitching of Carruthers of the Centrals, off of whom only three hits were made. He was ably supported by Callinane.

The Paragons defeated the Griesediecks nine on Sunday at Amateur Park, in the presence of about 500 people. It was a pretty game, several brilliant plays being made on both side. The score was 10 to 7 in favor of the Paragons.

Ormond H. Butler, ex-umpire and ex-manager of the New York Opera Company, was married in Louisville, Ky, not long ago to Miss Hodgen, a local bella. Butler's umpiring was well known here.

The Providence Boston sixteen inning game was one of the most remarkable on record. It was purely a pitcher's game. With perfect play the score would have been 0 to 0. Whitney struck out thirteen men and Radbourne eight. The Providence Club was short the services of Joe Start, but Hines filled his place to perfection.

The best League fielding nine that could be gathered according to the flay records would be: Mokinnon, ib.; Connor, 2b.; Sutton, 3b.; McCiellan: a s.; O'Rourke, I. f.; Gore, e. f.; Manning, r.f.; Ewing, e.; Whitney, p. The best batting team would be: Mokinnon, ib.; Connor, 2b.; Sutton, 3b.; McCiellan: a s.; O'Rourke, I. f.; Gore, e. f.; Manning, r.f.; Ewing, e.; Whitney, p. The best batting team would be most reviously played by League clubs was between Boston and Providence, which the home team won in the eighteenth inning by a score of 1 to 0. The longest game on record was played by Harva club gaining a run.

Gallagher, late pitcher of the Philadelphia Club's reserves, has had several flattering offers for an engagement since his release. Both the Baltimore and Keystone clubs, of the Union Association, are extremely anxious to obtain him. Manager Henderson of the Baltimore Club, spent a day in Philadelphia especially to secure Gallagher, and even offered him $170 a month for the balance of the season. Gallagher says he would rather play at home in Philadelphia, but the tempting offer of the Baltimore Club is quite an inducement, and he holds the matter under advisement.

more Club is quite an inducement, and he holds the matter under advisement.

As the sin grows hotter the ball players are getting thawed out and limbering up, and from now on better ball may be expected. The pitchers, too, will be benefited by hotter weather, which will help take the soreness out of their arms. This spring, with its variable weather, has been hard on all bull players, but especially on the pitchers, who are liable to catch cold in the muscles of the arm. There are but frow clubs which have not been handicaped by lame pitchers from this very cause. This in a great measure accounts for the set-backs the Athletics, St. Louis and Cincinnati Clubs have received in the American Association, and for many of the defeats of Chicago. STREET SPRINKLING.

The Ordinance Which is to be Drafted. .

be Sprinkled-To be Paid Out of the General Revenue.

Col. Flad is up to his eyes in an ordinance to provide for the sprinkling of the streets of St. Louis out of general revenue. Some time ago the Assembly called on the B. P. I. for a draft of such as mittee to do the work properly coming within the provisions of such an ordinance?"

"Two hundred and fifty-eight miles. You see if it is to be paid for by the public, we cannot afford to elight anybody. Every street within a thousand feet of a distributing water pipe will have to be sprinkled."

"And how do you propose to regulate the work so as to insure the laying of the dust!"

"By careful specifications based on actual experience. These specifications must vary according to the character of the pavement. For instance, a macadam street must be sprinkled heavily, but the intervals may be comparatively long. That is because the dust absorbs a great deal of water and holds it for some time. An asphait pavement, on the contrary, nust be sprinkled lightly and often, because the dirt is thin and the water falling to sink below the hot surface, evaporates rapidly. To insure the right kind of work in these particulars we must not rely on drivers of wagons, but the ordinance must provide the size of the holes in the sprinkler and the number of them to the square for the tops a the respective the contrary.

foot to be used on the respective kind of pavements."

"And will it prescribe the number of sprinkles per day?"

"No; that would be impracticable, because the number would necessarily vary according to the condition of the weather. The way that will be governed is this: We will specify the maximum number of sprinkles the city will have the right to exact from the contractors on the various kinds of streets, and will put in a penalty clause under which the contractor may be fined in case he falls to keep the dust down. So that, if it can be proved that the dust was allowed to rise on any given block, the prima facte case is against the contractor. If he can show he had sprinkled that block the maximum number of times in the twenty-four hours, that will be a good defense. We will see to it, however, that the maximum is so high that it is bound to keep the dust down in the hottest weather."

"And how do you propose to have the contract let?"

"We expect to divide the city into a number of districts, say five or six, and the contracts can be let by districts. A contractor can then estimate just how much a team can do in a day, can provide for continuous work of the team without any loss of time in skipping blocks or streets, and can so schedule his work as to secure the greatest economy of time, labor and expense. All he will have to take chances on will be the weather."

"And how about water supply?"

"We are giving careful attention to that. We will endeavor to place supply plugs at just such distances from each other as are covered by a sprinkler in distributing its load, so that a wagon can take a supply at its starting point move right along its route, and arrive at another plug just as its supply is exhausted. In this way we will avoid loss of time or unnecessary wear of streets by driving empty wagons several blocks to renew their supply, and by driving loaded sprinklers several blocks before reaching the point where they begin to sprinkle. So, you see, the ordinance will represent a large amount of mathematical work."

"And how will the cost compare with the, present cost of sprinkling." "And how will the cost compare with the present cost of sprinking?"
"I am thoroughly satisfied that by the economy of this system the entire city can be sprinkied for less money than is now paid out by private citizens for sprinking—less than one-half of it. I am not in favor, you know, of sprinking at the expense of general revenue, because I don't think enough money can be spared from it for that purpose. But I am in favor of general sprinking by special tax, and whatever be the method of paying for it, this special will apply just the same. I will have the

A NEW TRIAL.

Dierberger Will be Tried Again for Killing John Herne.

Judge Van Wagoner this morning gave his decision on the motion for a new trial in the case of Otto L. Dierberger, who was under conviction for Otto L. Dierberger, who was under conviction for murder in the first degree. In support of the motion, Messrs. Johnson and Normile presented the affidavit of Juror Immig, who swore that Juror Andreas Hoffman had stated before his selection he would haug Dierberger, and while they were deliberating in the jury-room he said he would stay there for six in the jury-room he said he would stay there for six months and then cut his throat before he would agree to any other verdict. Another juror's affidavit corroborative of Immig's story was also made. Hoffman contradicted it, but under the ruining of the Supreme Court in the Burnside case, a new trial must be granted. In passing on the question, Judge Van Wagoner said he had no way of placing the perjury that had been committed, but as the case was presented on the motion it was "an unsavory mess."

PUBLIC AUCTION

ON THE PREMISES,

Saturday, June 14, 1884.

COMMENCING AT 10 O'CLOCK A. M.

This property is know as the Christian Brothers Addition to Cabanne Place, and is recognized as the most beautiful Suburban tract in this or any other city. This Gentleman It is in the center of lovely mansions, only thirty minntes' ride from the court-house and approached by steam and street railroad cars. For health and comfort this beautiful western suburb is not surpassed; it is convenient to churches and schools; the well-known seat of learning, the famous College of the Christian Brothers, is only a few blocks distant, and one of the stations of the Narrow-Gauge Railroad is located on the ground; also Rose Hill station on the Wabash, and in full view of Forest Park.

The Lots are 50x160, and fronting on Maple and Justin avenues, 60 feet wide.

Sign Boards will indicate the locality; each lot will be staked off, and the intention is to dispose of every lot on the day of sale.

The terms are one-third cash, the balance in one and two years, with 6 per cent interest on the deferred payments. Lithographic plats can be had at the office of the Agents. Twenty dollars to be paid on bidding off each lot. The title is perfect and will be warranted.

Is one of the handsomest additions on the Narrow-Gauge Railroad, with three stations within 1,800 feet, and reached in its center by the graded road-way through Cabanne Place. We offer the remaining FIVE CORNER LOTS and SEVEN INSIDE LOTS in this beaftiful addition for the next week at the old prices, in face of the fact that the required future operation of the road in the city limits, after the completion of the cable extension down-town, will increase the frequency of trains four-fold, decrease the time to the business center one-third and reduce the fares 60 per cent, giving a probable enhancement of values of 50 per cent.

pended in the South. Interviews with politicians from Southern States show that the ticket, Blaine and Logan, is the most popular one that could have been nominated for the South. Such men as Randolph To-short. dolph Tucker of Virginia, Congressman Skinner of North Carolina, Barbour of Virginia, and others say trankly that if any man or ticket can carry the frankly that if any man or ticket can carry the States of Virginia, North Carolina, and perhaps Florida and Louisiana. It is that which was nominated at Chicago last Friday. With this idea it is understood that attention will be turned toward the South, and that the doubt which attaches to the possibility of carrying New York will be met with an effort to carry Southern States, which will offset the loss of the New York vote, if it should be lost. The general impression is that with Blaine upon the ticket the Pacific coast States will certainly be Re-publican, as his record on the Chinaman is quite satisfactory to your Pacific Coaster, and no matter

WHEAT PROSPECTS.

The June report of the Department of Agriculture, for which the data have been coming in for several days, will show a very satisfactory condition of the spring wheat crop. Throughout the country, so far as can be learned shese reports indicate a slight increase in acreage and prospects for about an average yield. There is a considerable increase in acreage and prospects for about an average in Dakota and the far Northwest, while the remainder of the spring wheat section practically holds its own in acreage. There is a tendency on the part of agriculturists in the wheat sections, omitting the extreme Northwest, to decrease the average rather than increase it, but as the number of agriculturists constantly increases, the total acreage keeps up to about its former standing. Altogether the prospects for winter and spring wheat is considered by the Department as quite satisfactory.

THE GENEVA AWARD.

The COURT of Alabama Claims has decided that it the prospects for winter and spring wheat is considered by the Department as quite satisfactory.

The Court of Alabama Claims has decided that it will receive no more claims at this session after the 12th inst., and will devote itself to the disposal of the case now in hand. The court is at something of a loss just now to know how to proceed with its work. Bills are pending in Congress which if passed will admit to the list of claims of the first claes probably six or eight million dollars, worth of claims which are not now admissable under the ruling of the court. These are for vessels destroyed by Confederates and Confederate authority in the harbors or within the line which marks the boundary of the "high seas." There are already about ten million dollars worth of these claims of the first class, though it is probable that they will be cut down to about six millions by the ruling of the court. Should these other claims be admitted by the passage of the pending bills these claims of the first class would be more than the total sum in the hands of the court for distribution; this total being less than ten millions of dollars. In addition to this there are some seventeen million dollars' worth of insurance claims which are counted claims of the second class. It is interesting to note, however, that in the midst of these complications the court confidently remarks that it will be able to finish its work and distribute its fund by the efd of the period allotted in the last extension of its term, January 1, 1886.

This morning at 5 o'clock as Officer Eagan of the Third Police District, was entering his residence, No. 2508 Cass avenue, he discovered a chip basket on his front door step. In the basket he found a baby boy about three weeks old. The infant was handsomely dressed in white, and had a white lace cap trimmed with blue ribbon. Officer Eagan will adopt the child. In the basket was the following note: "The mother of this child was deceived by the promise of marriage, and is compelled to leave it with a good family, hoping they will take good care of it, as she has no means of supporting the child, and in future will send money to the party by mail for taking care of the child, as she may want it again. His name is Wille E. —" Marks on the paper showed that the woman had written the full name of the baby, but subsequently erassed it.

Audrain County Crop Prospects.

By Telegraph to the Fust-Disputch.

MEXICO, Mo., June 10.—In conversation with farmers from different parts of the county is in learned that the prospects for an abundant crop is very promising. Corn, though rather late, is look-ing fine and growing rapidly. The cat and grass crops, from present indications, will be unprecedent-ed. The rain of last night is of great benefit to growing crops, and was much needed in some parts of the county,

This cloudy weather extends but a short distance west of here, and under ordinary changes of atmosphere we should have been enjoying clear sties this morning. That this frigidity is entirely attributable to the high barometer area that has moved toward the south and is now central in Eastern Kansas and Nebraska, is shown by the fact that it is six degrees warmer in St. Paul than in Chicago where the, thermometer is 49, and a trifle warmer than here, where only 54 degrees are registered. In the central portions of the Mississippi and Ohio Valleys it is cloudy, but in the northern part of the Missouri and Mississippi Valleys and in the entire west and southwest there is a cloudless canopy of bine. Railroad bill are in the hands of the Mayor this Railroad bill are in the hands of the Mayor this morning. Concerning the former, a delegation consisting of Father Harty of St. Bridget's, and Bro. Paulin of the Christian Brothers, requested to be heard in protest against a signature by his Honor. The ground of their objection is that the northern branch of the road is to pass along Jefferson avenue, and that it will prove very detrimental to the St. Bridget's Church and the school just opposite. It is altogether probable that the bill will be signed, not withstanding this remonstrance, and the Forest Park Railroad bill is in no danger of being vetoed.

A Sacrificing Hackman.

From the Detroit Free Frees.

A hackman yesterday walked into a hotel and up to a guest who was reading a paper, and holding out a silver dollar on his palm he said:

"When I drove you up here this morning you made a mistake and gave me half a dollar too much. Here is your dollar. I want only my regular fee."

The man took the coin and handed out a fifty-cent piece without speaking a word. His conduct nettled another guest, who followed the hackman out and remarked:

"My man, that was an honest action on your part."

"Well, yes, but you see the dollar he gave me was a base counterfeit!"

A CRANIUM CRAZE.

"There, now, I can let my wife arrange the wig, since I've finished the shaving part," said the proprietor, as he came from behind the curtain.

"Yes, but you were operating on a head, and a lady's head, at that," said the astonished reporter.

"Why, certainly, It's becoming the rage now among the ladies to have their heads demuded of hair till they shine like a billiard ball, and it is spreading like wild fire, too."

"But you can't have many customers as yet?"

"Well, I can count them over by the dozens now, and the mania only struck the country this spring. It seems as though this is just the thing that tickles the women, because, you see, the deception is so clever that it is really amusing, and I can't help laughing when I think how surprised some young husbands, who married this summer, will be when their wives take off not only their back hair but their entire capillary covering. I've seen

May, think of it; what would be your feelings if you would twine your fingers around a silken tress and the next minute find yourself fondling a bald head?"

"Are your customers principally elderly ladies?"

"By no means. The younger portion of the sex predominates by a large majority. Quite a number of old ladies, hearing that it is the style anyway and being desirous of replacing their scattering hairs by a full head, are constant patrons, but the most ardent devotees are the stylish society belies. It originated in a necessity with a few and rapidly spread. The rage for blondes a short time ago caused numerous girls to bleach their hair, and when recently they went out of popular favor, the foolish virgins found themselves possessed of an article that threatened to ruin all their matrimonial chances. They cast around for a way to restore their hair's natural color and discovered that theonly sure plan was to part with it all and grow a new crop. At first the idea was almost repulsive, but when they learned how many pretty designs in wigs could be used they accepted it as an agreeably novel innovation. The concealme for an excursion from St. Louis to Springfield, to visit the Lincoln monument, were badly victimized by the circulation and sale of counterfeit tickets, and were only able to make the trip yesterday through the liberality of one of their number, who put up $136 of the necessary sum.

A young woman who was brought here by a drummer from Chicago for improper purposes under promise of marriage, thwarted those purposes, and was abandoned by him at the Union Depot last evening. Kindly travellers contributed to a fund for purchasing her a ticket back to her home, and put her in charge of the conductor.

At a joint meeting of the Teachers' and Salary Committees, last evening, salaries were fixed to grade as follows: Principals of Mound School, Franklin Schools and High School, $2,400, $2,500 and $2,700. This applies to all new principals, present principals to all receive $2,700; music supervisors to receive $1,800; drawing supervisors, $1,500, $1,600 $1,700 and $1,800; present supervisors to receive $1,800; drawing supervisors to receive $1,800; drawing supervisors to receive $1,800; tindergarten supervisors to receive $2,000, and assistant supervisors to receive $1,800; tindergarten supervisors to receive $1,900; tindergarten supervisors t if they don't carry it to a ridiculous extreme their hair will grow out much thicker and more vigorous."

"Can't a wig be easily detected?"

"Try it and see. The average man, judging by what he knows of wigs of years past, thinks he can tell at once. But there he is greatly mistaken, for their manufacture in late years has developed an article that is as near nature as a counterfeit can be got, and I have some here that cannot be detected without a close observation that would never be made. Man's wigs are not so artistically fashioned because a man seldom puts one on till he gets gray, when it is immaterial to him whether people know he is baid and comment upon the singular smoothness under the mass of black hair. But with a woman it is so different that the wig must cover all the evidences of a bare scalp. This is done by making their wigs of nothing but hair, including the foundation. On a ground-work of hair of the desired color, the separate and distinct hairs are fastened by hand, one at a time with a peculiar hooked needle, and only one is placed in a mesh.

you see, almost a counterpart of the natural hair, and if it is kept properly combed out so that the locks will wander over the edge and upon the neck it is literally impossible to distinguish the difference."

locis will wander over the edge and upon the neck it is literally impossible to distinguish the difference."

"Are full wigs the most common?"

"Yes. without doubt, as very few have only part of the head shaved. This, however, is often done: A lady will wear what we call a scant wig for a short time and then bringing it back have some hair added to it so as to make her friends think her real hair has been growing. This can be repeated until the full length is reached. It is a process, though, that is expensive, as it requires extra skill. That is a tuck, the most freely indulged in by young men. It seems to be a peculiarity of the present age that men get bald before thirty or anyway before forty, and I am furnishing scores of young and middle aged gentlemen with these progressive wigs."

"Chestnut brown, and that is considered a rarity which leads a person to very naturally suspect that of the women who have it nine out of ten have a shaved skin under it. The style calls for curly wigs, that is, not the tight corkscrew, or anything like that, but the easy graceful curls that have been worn for some time. They have to be worn somewhat carelessly though, as any stiffuess in the lay of the locks at once discloses the existence of the wig. That is just where people make mistakes when they buy those that have every hair laid just so."

"Well, its pretty hard to say, as nearly every lady leaves an order for a kind that requires special work and charge for extras. The average price of one for street use is $15, and for general wear costs $35, and the house wig is worth $35."

"The house wig is the one chiefly worn at theaters!"

At last night's meeting of the Council the Elevated Railroad bill was read finally and signed by the president. An ordinance allowing Hermann Brosto quarry into Commercial street in the north end of the city passed, and six bills for six new engine house sites were signed. An effort by Mr. Devoy to change the date of adjournment from the 10th to the 13th was unsuccessful. The St. Louis Transfer Railway bill was received from the House, and will be considered to-night. A resolution by Mr. Cummings asking the Counselor how it was that the Wiggins Ferry Company charged 80 and 70 cents for ferrying four-hourse and two-horse teams, when the law makes 60 and 80 cents the maximum prices, was adopted. Adjourned to this evening.

The Levee Belt Road bill was considered at length in the House of Delegates last night. Judge Davis denied that the bill was anagonistic to the Gould roads, and remarked in argument that the Gould System seemed to take no interest in opposing it. He moved to lay the bill over. An effort to put in an amendment for a third rail to accommodate narrow gauge cars was defeated, and the bill passed by a vote of 19 to 1. The Slevin resolution providing for the lease of Forest Park restaurant to the highest bidder for one year was adopted. Adjourned till this evening.
